MONEY TRUST INQUIRY

Chairman Henry of the Rules Com-decision of the Court of Appeals. The Board of Tax Commissioners to-day gave out the total final valuations for 1912 as compared with the total final valuations for 1912 as compared with the total final valuations for 1912 as compared with the total final valuations for 1911. In each case here must be a reduction from the figures given in the equalization, which will not be complete for several days. Being comthe following the principal assessments in New York city for this year as compared with the assessments for last year are the following. "That is not the way to meet the situation. A reedom of debate and facility American Dist. Telegraph Co 5100.000 panic might ensue if this plan were fol-Why not admit there is a money trust if such a thing exists and then set about to frame legislation to remedy the What is the good of investigating on the mere claim that such a trust exists. When you begin to investigate a concern in this manner you create distrust in it, perhaps doing general harm. Investigate a bank and you encourage people to draw their money out of it. Suppose the House determined to probe this bank and that the attitude of the people would be expressed by the remark. Why, that bank is under fire. I'd better get my money out of it.' the money trust exists the way to meet the situation is to legislate promptly and without going into a long investi-

Mr. Littleton added that those members of the House who were insistent that the money trust should be investigated evidently overlooked the fact that many of the largest banks in the were not engaged in interstate commerce, and possibly were not susceptible of being inquired into in the manner proposed by the resolution introduced by Representative Lindbergh of Minnerota, which has stirred up all the trouble.

Mr. Littleton is not a member of the Rules Committee, but several Democrats privately expressed indignation to-day that Mr. Henry had chosen this particular time to call attention to the difference of opinion in the Democratic party over the money trust question. There seems to be no doubt that the most important Democratic caucus of the season will be called for the near future to settle on the policy of the majority on the money trust issue.

Mr. Henry's statement is in part as

The American people are entitled to an investigation of the money trust. There must be no sensational and muckraking inquiry, but a wise, deliberate, systematic and effective probing into the conditions constituting the trust

Yesterday Samuel Untermyer made an exhaustive and absolutely unanswerable argument before the Committee on Rules in favor of the investigation. This weakness in price has been due entirely to the abin price has been due entirely to the ab-sence of big buying orders from American One of the best features of the situation has been the fact that producers have not been forced to press copper, for sale, the largest of them being sold up through There has been exported thus far in January 24,091 tons of copper, a great part of which was shipped from Baltimore, where the American Smelting and Refining where the American Smelling and Rehning Company has a plant. Last week's exports from that port were 1, 90 tons.

One of the strongest arguments in favor of the belief that the consumption of copper will expand is the decided increase in the demand for iron and steel which has filled the mills with orders that will keep them, busy for many months to come. filled the mills with orders that will keep them busy for many months to come Another is the belief that political conditions will gradually become more favorable and lead to greater activity in the electrification of terminal and suburban lines, as well as a larger demand for all forms of electrical apparatus and brass goods. It is certain that if it were not for the uncertain political outlook the copper industry would be regarded as in an ideal condition both from the standpoint of the stocks on hand and the promise for the future.
